Our Bethany Beach Retreat is coming
Sept 30—Oct 3
We help fund this retreat with the money we make serving at the Pontiac Car Show. Mark your calendar and let Hugh Howard know if you can go.

If someone you know is in need of prayer or spiritual care please call the pastor, an elder, or one of our associates. We cannot help if we do not know of a need or concern.
Joe and I were away for three days attending the Maryland Firemen's Convention. It is a fun trip because we can visit some relatives at the same time. We visited my nephew Clay, my brother's oldest son, and his wife Jessica. Clay is building another new home in Ocean Pines, which he promptly sells and builds another. My new grand niece Gracie Sophia was a delight to visit...Joe had a lot of fun with his new 8 month old cousin.

My cousin Tim and his wife Barbara operate a business in Ocean City called The Daily Grind and yes, you guessed it, it is a coffee shop. We were back at work late Wednesday, and had a working lunch with Delancy Catlett of the Downsville Church. He will be ordained November 12.

Somebody asked about Bible Study. The Monday night study continues in the summer. The Wednesday morning study will resume in September. We are looking forward to feeding the Hungry on August 20th - get details from Pat Griffith or Barb Dangler.

I hear excitement about the MUSIC FEST JULY 17th. Janet Reister has details. The cook out afterwards will be a zinger!

The Theater Camp this week has been great fun. Phil Day and Gail Howard are working very hard, as is Becky Delameter and many enthusiastic kids. Come to the show "Wizard of Oz" Friday JULY 1st.

Our youth have been getting together with Joe after Church and are planning an outing. Call Joe for details 240 388 7338

It is wonderful to see the Church so busy with enthusiastic folks at work! God Bless you!

+Terry

CAMP STARFISH

Our camp for the children of inmates in Montgomery County Adult Correctional Facility is called Camp Starfish. Bob Turman explained that the name relates to the story about the boy on the beach throwing starfish into the sea. When told that there are too many and that it wouldn't make a difference, the boy said, “It made a difference to that one.”

Camp Starfish is scheduled for August 8, 9 & 10. Persons interested in serving on the committee to plan and design the camp should talk to the pastor. We need to start early and plan well to make this camp work.

We have a meeting scheduled this Friday July 1st at 9:00 AM at the Montgomery County Correction facility. (the jail)
Take Clarksburg exit and first right turn to the jail.

Barb Dangler is one busy woman! But let me start at the beginning. Barb was born in the southwest part of Kentucky; Elkton was a small town and part of a farming community. When she was one year old her mom died. From that time on she lived with relatives. She attended whichever church the family attended: Presbyterian, Baptist, Nazarene. When she was ten she moved with her maternal grandparents to Michigan. It was during World War II and the auto factories that her grandfather worked in became munitions factories.

When Barb turned twelve years old she was attending a Church of Christ church and she wanted to join, but her grandmother told her “No, that is not your church.” When she turned thirteen she was baptized in a Baptismal of a Christian Church, Disciples of Christ. As Barb put it “Kentucky was not as liberal as Michigan, it was the Bible Belt and there was no dancing allowed in schools or church, nor any musical instruments.” I commented that this reminded me of what Bob Turman told me not too long ago.

“The minister of that first DoC church I attended was quite good with the young people. He was young himself; he took us to meet with other churches, other Christian Youth, where we would have fellowship; we would often go to regional meetings and picnics—but there was absolutely no dancing!” she laughed.

Barb’s grandfather bought a small farm where he grew tobacco, corn, hay, and wheat. Barb worked on that farm with both her grandfather and her grandmother. She took a school bus to school- she told me that she walked a whole mile to the bus! Barb loved school so she did not mind that walk much. Her favorite subjects were math and science. The school she attended was a consolidated school, and when she was in the third grade she was in a one room schoolhouse.
After graduating high school, Barb was given a nursing scholarship through a hospital that was local to Murray State College. That college gave the students internships that were near military bases, so many of the nurses ended up marrying military men. Barb was no exception.

Her nursing program was a three year program; they attended school for a year and a half and then did a year and a half in the field. Barb’s husband was from Bethesda, Maryland and he was in the Marines. After they married Barb went with him back to his hometown and she got a job at Suburban Hospital. There she was the Assistant Supervisor of the OR (operating rooms).

Soon Barb had her hands full with three children so she retired- but only for six years! Holy Cross Hospital was in need of a nurse in their medical/surgical unit so she went there for two years. Then, an oral surgeon who operated at Holy Cross made her an offer to work in his office. The hours were so much better she took that job and she worked with him for 13 years.

After the office job Barb moved to Shady Grove Hospital where she was the Supervisor of Sterile Processing. Barb told me that she especially liked the job at Shady Grove because she worked with people from all different countries, of differing nationalities. One time Barb gave a Christmas party and she invited her co-workers. It happened that Terry came, and he was doing some of his magic tricks. There was one certain man from Ghana, Africa, who really believed Terry was doing magic! I then told Barb a story about how a magician had come to visit the University of Malawi when my husband was teaching there in 1994. None of his students had any doubt in their minds that man was really turning rocks into candy, either!

There was also an incident with another co-worker from India who believed that a third co-worker had put a curse on him. There was no way that Barb could convince him otherwise, so she had to have the “curser” take the curse of the “cursee”. This seemed to give the man some relief. I wish it had been that easy for me when I was in the same situation in Malawi back in 1994.

Barb has three birth children. Elizabeth lives in New Jersey where she is raising three of Barb’s granddaughters: Sarah, Sheila and Emma. Marti is a teacher in Maine where she teaches the fifth grade. Anne lives in Alaska where she works for the Anchorage Daily News. She is raising her children Jennifer and Keenan. I asked Barb how it was that Anne moved to such a far off and exotic part of the United States and she replied “Her husband is crazy!” with a laugh. In fact Anne’s husband is not crazy, but just happened to have a friend who lived in Alaska. He and Anne decided to check it out and they both liked it enough to move there.

Barb also adopted two older children from Costa Rica in 1981. Because Barb was married to a Catholic she attended Catholic Church for many years. That church was very active in mission work in South and Central America. She and her husband heard of the need of families for older children through missionaries that worked in Costa Rica. These children were in the state run orphanage and the state could no longer support them. When they were in Costa Rica, they saw the crucial need for adoptive parents for many, many children and they decided to help. Max now lives in Gaithersburg, is married and is raising his 2 year old son, Max Jr. Max Sr. works for the Gazette. I commented on the coincidence of two children in the same profession! Sadly, Barb’s adopted daughter Kathleen passed away in 1988.

Finally, Barb decided to get back to her church roots and joined HCC in 1984. In 1986 she became a Deacon; she was Treasurer from 1989 until 2002 and is a church Trustee. She has been on the Property Committee and often works the church yard sale, as well as organizes and works with the rest of the volunteers from HCC at the Soup Kitchen in downtown Frederick.

“I like it. I like helping people,” Barb said. Clearly Barb has a very strong social conscience, which lends to action on her part. She sees herself as an orphan, and so she feels she has a special connection and sensitivity to children, especially orphans and children who have been victimized in wars. “We’re all the same,” she said, “I cannot stereo-type people.”

Barb left Shady Grove in 1995 when they were downsizing. She got a job in a pain management clinic until she retired in 2003. I asked her what she has been doing and what would she like to do in her “golden years”. She said that she line dances with Martha Coo ley for exercise and that she also volunteers her time doing different things for people. Recently she helped paint a picket fence. She also makes beautiful quilts. She reads a lot of mysteries and just read _Alaska_ by Michener. She likes to garden and she makes a mean pesto. She would like to help more with Hope Alive. Barb may be retired, but that sure hasn’t slowed her down!
News from the Road

This is a snippet from Dana’s email to Terry. We look forward to having her home from Malawai and hearing more about her sojourn.

“The roads are in even more terrible shape than last year. Owning a 4x4 is totally justifiable here. Of course most people are far too poor to own a car or truck so they walk and take minibuses. Some have bicycles. I won't ride in a mini-bus. They are usually stuffed to the gills with people and animals and are in very bad shape-bald tires, no lights, worn brakes etc. The drivers drive like maniacs, and I do not have a death-wish. So it's either catch a ride with a friend or walk.

This past Friday, Davis (my translator/body guard*) and I got a ride to the local town (Thondwe), then walked from there to the village where he lives. Originally we were to meet a couple of elderly ladies, but they had to attend a funeral. So we had a date with a couple of other women. When we got to their compound they were not there; there was a fellow there making bricks and the ladies had gone to get water (or so the brickmaker said) so we said we would come back later. It is not unusual for someone to make an appointment with me and then completely blow it off. I hate to say it is typical, but it is common. I think maybe they think I won't keep my word- Davis is way more harsh and says villagers act that way routinely, even with each other.

So we walked to his wife's compound. About the compound- there is never a fence around it, it's usually just a group of houses where the extended family lives. In this area of Malawi marriage is matrilineal, so the husband moves into his wife's village. He is supposed to build her a house when he can afford it; everything belongs to her and her family (houses, land, any crops grown and so on). Davis and his wife Sherizana (married two years) live in a room in her mother's house for now. Margaret (the mother) has really bad cataracts and on Monday I am going to call the hospital in Blantyre to talk to them about getting her cataracts removed. Davis said he checked once and they mentioned a fee of 6000 kwacha ($45 now) but Davis was not sure if that was for everything. It may be- last year we paid for our friend to have a root canal and a crown and it was only 4500 kwacha, which at that time was around $45. And the kwacha has be devaluing the whole time I have been here.

So it might be that I will be able to help this lady get her sight back- I intend to use the money the church gave me for stuff like this. I have already paid several thousand kwacha for maize (the staple food) for many people, as last years rains were very poor and so the harvest was really bad. There was a famine in 2002 and I am afraid things will be as bad or worse this year. The maize is running out. It's hard to imagine the govt ignoring the plight of millions of people..... I will talk with you more about this when I get home. I also gave 5000 kwacha to a small family in Ntiya Village. I will also tell you about them when I get home.”

Dear Friends,

June went by in a blur, the school year ended, graduations were celebrated, & vacations have started. At Church we had numbers of people participating in the Pontiac Show at Burdette Bros., we enjoyed a social hour that honored Pearl Anderson & we recognized the men of the Church with home improvement gifts on Father’s day.

Sandy Law & her part time business were recently featured in an article in the Frederick News-Post Business section. Eddie Flook proudly reports that he has sold his first home. The Frederick Camarata’s Summer Theatre Camp is finishing it’s first session with a production of “Oz,” based on the play “The Wizard of Oz.” Gail Howard is directing, Phil Day is the musical director & Joe Reister is technical director. Becky & Peter DeLameter have been helping along with Magi Memmott. Their 2nd session begins July 11 and ends with a production on July 22.

Brenda Yankaskas has also been busy directing & producing several musicals at the Friends Meeting School, including “Peter Pan.” We heard rave reviews from several parents. Kurt set up her sound system. Beth Sweeney’s parents Rev. & Mrs. Cook recently visited from Florida. The Rev. Ginger Memmott is serving as interim minister at a Presbyterian Church in Colorado.

Larry & Janice Seaman have moved from Monrovia after living there for more than a quarter century. They are now enjoying condo life in Woman’s Mill just north of Frederick off Route 26. Pearl Anderson has moved in with her daughter Sally Tile & her family in North Carolina.

Gail Howard enjoyed a long weekend in Atlanta where she visited a friend & her family. Pierrette & Chuck McIntire traveled to southern Florida where they met up with family & friends & did some scuba diving.

Special thanks to Barbara Dangler & Debbie Flook for organizing & leading our efforts to sell food at the Pontiac Show. We had our best year ever!

Terry & Joe Reister went to the annual Maryland Fire Convention in Ocean City. Terry enjoyed the convention & they both spent some time with family & friends.

Debbie & Meghan Blair joined friends & went to see “Mama Mia” in Washington, DC. They said it was wonderful.
I hope you have a great July & that you can enjoy it in comfort. Please share your news with me. Grace & peace, +Janet
